

CONTENTS

Preface	11
Chapter 1: Introduction: The Move from Kant to Hegel: Between Continuity and Discontinuity	17
1. Introduction 17; 2. Hölderlin and Hegel: on the source of the break from Kant, and the criticism of his concept of reflection 22; 3. Hegel's criticism of the philosophy of reflection in "Faith and Knowledge" 47; 4. The critique of Kant in "Faith and Knowledge" 53; 5. The critique of Fichte in "Faith and Knowledge" and "The Difference between the Fichtean and Schellingian System of Philosophy" 55
Chapter 2: Hegel's Early Theological Writings	60
1. The early form of the critique of the philosophy of reflection 60; 2. Between ethics, theology, and politics: on the ethical-theological motivation 69; 3. Ethics and Volk religion 74; 4. The critique of "positive religion" 77; 5. "Fragment of a System", 1800 95
Chapter 3: The First Attempt at a Philosophical Systematization of the Critique of Culture	102
1. Introduction 102; 2. "A System of Ethical Life:" natural ethical life 108; 3. The first negative Aufhebung in ethical life 123; 4. The second positive Aufhebung of natural ethical life and the transition to absolute ethical life 130; 5. The essay on the natural law: critique of the method 138

Chapter 4: The First Versions of “The Philosophy of Spirit,” 1803/04 and 1805/06: The Transition to the Scheme of Self-Consciousness	153
1. Introduction: the justification of the transition to the concept of Geist as self-consciousness	153;
2. “The Philosophy of Spirit,” 1803/04	166;
3. The scope of interpretation of “The Philosophy of Spirit,” 1803/04	186
Chapter 5: The Jena Lectures 1805/06	191
1. Introduction: the reason for the transition to the 1805/06 lectures	191;
2. Intelligence and will	198;
3. Will	205;
4. The struggle for mutual recognition	221;
5. The transition to objective Geist	237;
6. The transition to the constitution and absolute Geist	246
Chapter 6: “The Science of Logic”: Conceptual Outline of Ethical Life?	277
1. The interpretive framework for the reading of “Logic” as social ethics	277;
2. “The Science of Logic”: general description	284;
3. The Dasein	286;
4. The transition to the logic of essence	294;
5. The logic of notion	298 ;
6. The relation of objective logic to metaphysics	302;
7. Identity, difference, variation, polarity and contradiction	309;
8. Subjective logic: a conceptual outline of ethical life?	323
Epilogue	338
Bibliography	351
Index	361