

CONTENTS

Preface	7
Introduction	9

Part A

Linguistic Knowledge and its Acquisition – Chomsky’s Theory

Chapter I – The Framework of Chomsky’s Research –
Conceptual Analysis	19
1. Linguistic Capacity: First Order and Second Order Sense of Capacity 19; 2. Knowledge of Language: A Person Knows a Language although He Cannot Use It 21; 3. The Components of the Mental State of Linguistic Knowledge: A Cognitive System and Performance Systems 33; 4. Language: The Finite Means that Provide for Infinite Use 48; 5. Universal Grammar: Substantial Innate Principles 59 6. Modularity: Degrees of Independence of Mental Systems 74; 7. Evolutionary Explanations of Knowledge: Evolution as a Description rather than as an Explanation 95; 8. Knowledge and Justification: Knowledge without Justification 102
Chapter II – The Research	108
1. Chomsky’s Method of Research: "The Galilean Style" 108; 2. Constructing Theory, Developing Research: A Generative Grammar 130; 3. Historical Development of Linguistic Research: Incorporating the Study of Language within Natural Sciences 154; 4. General Illustrations of the Linguist’s Activity: Wondering at the Simplest Phenomena of Ordinary Life 177

Part B
Philosophical Contentions

Chapter III – Methodological Naturalism as a Way of Understanding the World and the Mind-Body Problem	189
1. Methodological Naturalism: Rejecting the Categorical Distinction among Entities 189; 2. Criticism against the “Psychological Reality” of the Theories that are Formulated within the Conceptual and Methodological Framework of Chomsky’s Research 217
Chapter IV – The Essence of Language and Linguistic Meaning	251
1. The Purpose of Language: Does Language Have an Essential Purpose? 251; 2. Linguistic Meaning: The Instructions that are Provided by the Features of Linguistic Expressions to the Conceptual-Intentional Performance Systems 261; 2.1 Frege’s Theory: Sign, Sense, Reference 264; 2.2 Putnam’s Externalist Conception of Meaning: A Person Refers to an Object by a Sign 284; 2.3 Content: Semantic Features of Linguistic Expressions 295; 2.4 Criticisms 298; 2.4.1 Communication 298; 2.4.2 Misuse of Language 298; 2.4.3 Truth Value 301; 2.5 Dummett’s Theory of Meaning: Truth Conditions 303; 2.6 Meaning and Beliefs 304; 2.7 Communicative Intentions 306
Chapter V – A Rationalist Approach to the Research of Mind and a Humanistic Conception of the Human Being	319
1. A Rationalist Approach to the Research of Mind: The Soul Sings out the whole Song upon the First Hint 320; 2. Human Creativity: Acts of Will and Choice 349; 3. Criticism: The Possibility of Explaining the Creative Aspect of Linguistic Use 355; 4. Political and Educational Implications of Romanticist Rationalism: Challenging Structures of Authority, Hierarchy, and Domination 369

Summary and Conclusions	383
References and Abbreviations	387
Primary Sources 387; Secondary Sources 390; Abbreviations of Chomsky's Writings 406
Indices	409
Names Index 409; Subject Index 414	